

PRESIDENT'S PARTNERS
FOR PROMISE

LONG BEACH CITY COLLEGE
FOUNDATION

Purpose

The President's Partners for Promise is Long Beach City College's premier giving society that provides essential leadership development, access and achievement opportunities for outstanding LBCC students through the following programs:

President's Ambassadors and Scholars

President's Partners for Promise members provide support to Long Beach City College's most accomplished and deserving students through annual scholarships and leadership development initiatives.

College Promise

Long Beach City College's nationally recognized partnership with Long Beach Unified School District, Long Beach State University and the City of Long Beach provides seamless education, preschool through college, to our community students. Half a million dollars are awarded through the Long Beach City College Foundation each year to fully fund tuition at LBCC for our local students.

State of the College

Members of the President's Partners for Promise, who support at the highest capacity, help LBCC fund its State of the College annual address to the community. In addition, members at this level make it possible to produce our Annual Report and receive special recognition in the publication.

Superintendent-President's Message

Each year, prominent alumni, business and community leaders provide much-needed financial support for scholarships to our best and brightest students through their participation in the President's Partners for Promise. Thanks to this visionary group, we are able to provide leadership development opportunities for LBCC students through our President's Ambassadors program. These students are the official ambassadors of Long Beach City College at campus and community events.

Just as our President's Ambassadors represent the College, our President's Partners play an important role as goodwill ambassadors for LBCC through their community interaction with elected leaders, potential funders, our students and their families. The President's Partners have also been a long-time supporter of LBCC's signature community event—the annual State of the College luncheon. The event is an opportunity to build support for the College, as well as inform and educate the community on our accomplishments and the challenges we face in the coming year.

On behalf of LBCC and our current and future students, I encourage you to partner with Long Beach City College through our President's Partners for Promise giving society.

President's Ambassadors' Messages

Vanessa De Guzman
current LBCC student,
future Nurse

Being a President's Ambassador has helped me come out of my shell and has challenged me to speak and network with leaders in Long Beach. It has also made me realize what my strengths and weaknesses are with regard to leadership and personal development. I highly recommend this program for future students and thank those that have supported the President's Ambassadors program, making it possible for me and others to participate.

Dalziel Arambula,
current LBSU student,
future educator

My first year as a President's Ambassador I bonded with my peers in the program, met distinguished members of the community, and learned valuable professional and leadership skills that benefit me in both my academic and professional life. The following year, I assumed the role as the President's Ambassador coordinator. This provided me with a new challenge leading and developing the next group of ambassadors while working with college leadership. My year as coordinator was enriching as I learned how to lead a diverse group of leaders, planned retreats and leadership development opportunities, and strengthened my connections through professional networking opportunities. My experience as an ambassador was invaluable and an important part of my collegiate experience and I encourage all students to become an ambassador.

Why You Should Be a Partner:

As a member of the President's Partners, I have seen first-hand the difference members have made through scholarships for students. Becoming a member brings exciting challenges and tangible rewards. I encourage you to join today.

—Howard Davis

The President's Partners is a crucial aspect of Long Beach City College's ability to deliver a quality education and life-serving experiences to our students and faculty. Become a member and help bring the promise of a first-rate education to our students.
